J. Dhanu. The film features Vikram Prabhu in the lead role with also making a special appearance in the film. The film's soundtrack and background score were composed by G V Prakash Kumar while the camera work was done. The film was released on 22 September 2012 and received mixed to positive reviews from critics. The movie starts with an earthquake in New Zealand and a spaceship coming down in the Himalayas. On board, there is a mysterious alien who looks like a human being except for his green ring glowing on his finger. He goes through the ship looking for something, but he didn't find it. He leaves the ship after exploding it to cover his tracks. The scene shifts to Varanasi where Sathya (Vikram) is a scientist who is pursuing research on anti-gravity. He boards his train to Mumbai with his assistant, Thangarasu (Soyaji Shinde), and they meet Shankar (Arin Vijay), who boards the train at the same station. The story takes a 10-year leap. Meanwhile, Aby (Amy Jackson) has joined her family business. She finds out that her dad has hidden something from her regarding the business and she finds out that it is Sathya's invention. She buys the invention from him and he comes to Chennai. There, he meets her mother (Sonia Agarwal), who tells Sathya that Aby has left for London to do her MBA. The scene shifts back to present time, where Aby is visiting her dad in the hospital. She talks with Sathya about how he has been helping her dad through his illness. He tells her that she should have told him earlier, because she could have used his help in business also. She says it is fine because she doesn't need anyone's help to become successful. She asks him to enjoy the evening and leave the hospital, since she will feel awkward if he stays there all night.
